

CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES PASSES THE MID POINT

As the Champion series passes the mid point the standing in some of the classes are quite close while others have only one or two stand outs. With four races left in the series the importance of points and competing in a sufficient number of races becomes clear. In order to qualify for the run off the driver must have competed in 7 events in the same class. If he or she finishes in the top five the driver is eligible to compete in the championship event for prizes and trophies.

Ed Higa continues his winning ways in A stock, taking first place in the September event. He has a comfortable lead in the A stock group. Curtis Lee borrowed some racing tires and came out to take first in A prepared. Mark Kanseshiro had a minor set back finishing third behind Lee and John Mayers . Nevertheless Mark has a commanding lead in A Prepared. Steve Serikaku has steadily gained points and has a nice lead in the C stock. In the hotly contested C street prepared class Doug Whittingham lost his first place position in the points standing to Tom Coughlin. A word of caution however Doug did not compete in the last event so don't place any bets now. Don Swartz shifted from E prepared class and took the first place honors in the C street prepared. Jim Kreytak gained on Bryon Hansen in the points standing in D stock. Bryon still holds 5 point spread.

Andy Chan is the new point leader in D prepared with Stephan Ma in second place. Steven Lee and Raleigh Ferdun still hold the first and second position in D modified. But Vravut Mani since he started competing in this class has taken first place each time in his Rabbit. Larry Adres continues his strong position in E stock driving his Scirocco. Paul DeMare still has a small point lead in E Modified ,but Rene Allen is coming up fast. Scott Young has an absolute hold on H stock . He is unbeaten for the season with a perfect 60 points . Likewise for Ray Suhl in F stock.

After much agonizing and analyzing the Board has decided that Ben Jacobson is the winner of the novice trophy for September. Ben drove his Scirocco to second place in E stock. Because of a foul up in the point standings in the August event we are going to reaward the novice trophy to a different driver---Steve Kimura who finished first in E stock in the August event. Congratulations to both of these drivers. See you at the races on Oct. 9 and Oct. 30.
